This conference brings together scholars and educators from a variety of Christian denominations, both Protestant and Catholic, in order to discuss the relation of reason and faith as it is understood in both the academy and Church over the past five hundred years. Our conference has both a theoretical and a practical aim. The theoretical aim is the scholarly inquiry into the range of possible ways of relating faith and reason which have emerged as a direct result of the Protestant Reformation and into the merits of such formulations. The practical aim is to allow attendees to reflect on the relation of their Christian faith to academic disciplines of research and to their teaching.

We invite all those interested in the conversation to attend. Registration information and a more detailed rationale can be found on our website (lillyfellows.central.edu). The deadline for registration is September 20.

If you have questions, please contact Terry Kleven (klevent@central.edu) or Mark Thomas (thomasma@central.edu).
